BELMONT SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL
BELMONT, MASSACHUSETTS

We never looked around us,
immersed in our books and bicycles.

Our swings in their weaving motions tied the earth and sky together and wrapped up our days
in neat brown-paper-packages which we never opened.

Those cold winter days-- we went outside after lunch
to stand in tight circles,
more for warmth than company.
We never once turned our heads to look about us.

Underneath the radical sign,
did we ever remember to free the four;
that square-root four equals
two, plus or minus.
For better or for worse?

Not even when our self-made prison was destroyed by hungry fire, did we melt the circle
to warm ourselves at its feet.
Instead, we tighter drew the ring,
and substituted bunsen-burner flames,
feeding on man-made oxygen.

But was it wrong, to wait?
Should we have opened the package before Christmas?
Would it be the same, without the long expectant years:
the wrapping paper made
of tests passed and failed,
of report cards and football games?
They made the gift seem better
Because of the waiting.

Now we change our mini-skirts for thick robes twice their length.
We cover up our Levi's with identical shrouds.

Now, we must cut the string,
tear the paper,
evaluate the four, to equal plus or minus two,

And open the box.

Mr. Robert J. O'Donnell

We, the class of 1969, would like to dedicate our yearbook to Mr. O'Donnell. In this, his first year as our principal, he has shown us that he is a leader of the student body and an advisor for us as individuals. This year has been characterized by a rise in intellectual, athletic, and class spirit, a rise which can be attributed to Mr. O'Donnell. He has not only spoken to us at class meetings but has joined in our activities, such as sports and student government. We are pleased, therefore, to welcome him and the new faculty members, who will surely continue their modern attitudes towards school affairs.

Mr. O'Donnell looks over administrative papers.

Administration

Mr. O'Donnell at his new duties.

Mr. George W. Stone
Assistant Principal

Mr. John J. Corrigan
Part-time Director of Vocational-Technical
High School; Metal Fabrication; Key Club

Students at Belmont High School have profited from the new administration under the auspices of three able leaders. Mr. O'Donnell, along with his responsibilities as chief administrator, has done the remarkable job of co-ordinating the ideas of the faculty, students, and school committee. Mr. Stone has organized the intricate mechanics of administration. It is he who has kept the many complicated parts of the high school running smoothly and effectively. Mr. Corrigan has directed that portion of the curriculum designed to train young men in technical skills.

With the great success these three men have met in their new roles, it is evident that the future success and achievement of our school will be due to the energy emanated by this administration.

Miss Dorothy M. Anderson
Dean of Girls; Guidance

Mr. William J. Brogna
Guidance

The members of the Guidance department are the unsung heroes of our school. Out of the deluge of facts, figures and all types of personal evaluations, they create the order which assists Belmont High Students in planning for their future.

The Guidance office remains open the entire day, during which time schedule conflicts, academic behavior, subject counseling and student difficulties are handled.

There can be no doubt that as students move forward through their school years, the services of the Guidance department will seem more and more valuable.

Here we are with our "myriad moods of youth" studying image trains and Biblical allusions in American and English literature. After keeping up with those reading machines, are you still able to see six numbers accurately when the tach-x flashes them at 1/100 of a second? We all learn how to skip the detailed descriptions of whaling in Moby Dick and how to go about a creative interpretation of Antigone. The order is given—"Memorize forty lines of Julius Caesar." Now we are going to study the tragic flaws in Macbeth's character, but somehow we end up having an argument on whether the structure of Macbeth is an isosceles or equilateral triangle. What's wrong with preferring Holinshed to Shakespeare?—Nothing, but this essay is a "hurley-burley" in itself.

French courses can be long struggles through the Conditional Perfect and attempts to "faire des progress" with impossible idioms. But having accomplished this the student can then enjoy "le role du comique chez Moliere" and ponder "l'angoisse du poete".

Aside from the normal topics of a German course, students are likely to discuss anything from the reign of Karl der Grosse to the love life of Anna Ulmer and Rudi Wolf. They learn how to portray a parrot as they mimic the conversational patterns. Then comes the graduation to minor birds as they memorize the bible by Cochran.

Languages

Spanish class offers a study of the literature as well as the rudiments and specifics of the Spanish language. The passages for translation give vivid insight into Spanish culture as well as traditions and customs. Bull fights are the most popular. These things, consequently, allow the student to appreciate the language as being more than just drills and dialogues.

Italian students learn the language first through conversations and drills. Later, after strengthening their vocabulary, they begin to read letters which describe things, such as Italian soccer games. Throughout their studies, lectures provide information on Italian customs and way of life.

Latin class is always enjoyable, whether you are wishing Caesar to walk onto a tree, whether you are trying to figure out why Cicero wrote so many pages to say he hated Catiline, or if you are exploring the labors of Aeneas. Though students may cringe at the thought of the grammar of Baker and Englis, Latin syntax teaches a good discipline for language study.

History students under the leadership of Socrates begin the search for "historical truth" armed with 10,000 paperbacks. They gain a cross-section of historians' opinions, learn that right and wrong are relative to time, and then attempt to find THE answer. Once a student gets beyond arithmetic and 2+2=4, he may find (despite the opinion of many parents) that modern math is quite interesting. After an introduction of x and y in algebra, he draws little pictures of triangles and rectangles in geometry. No matter how different in size he may have drawn two certain triangles, they must be proven congruent. Although few people have ever bothered to find (a+b) to a power of one hundred, at least the math student knows how to do it. Then one must solve such everyday problems as filling a tub that has a hole in it. Don't forget trigonometry—it seems to keep repeating its functions in every mathematics course that one takes. Those who have completed trigonometry without reaching the limit of their interest may take calculus. Once a student has gone this far, often his most common mistakes are made in arithmetic!

Although bilogy includes great amounts of classification (kingdom, phylum, tedium ad nauseam), one can also gain the singular experience of investigating, and destroying, the intestines of a frog, the brain of a newt, or the xylum and phloem of a diseased crocus. However, many find mitosis and the reproductive cycles of protazoa more stimulating. Regardless of what you prefer, biology provides an opportunity to pursue the field of science closest to Homo sapiens (sapiens?).

Biology

"If you blow up a hydrogen generator, you will be immediately banished from the laboratory!" With this deified voice, chemistry lab manuals command certain disciplines. Cautiously, chem students, better known as "plumbers", prepare to explore those age-old mysteries of this science, such as: how to burn rubber tubing, how to get one's finger down a one-quarter inch diameter thistle tube, or how to "legally" purloin your associate's equipment.

Mr. Paul E. Stevens
Chemistry; Biology

Besides a thorough understanding of the basis of physics, students of this science are also confronted with new nebulous ramifications. A student learns about the motivation of the domestic Basset Scat, as well as the megalomania of the fierce Orangel. One also may reflect over the virtues of a virtual image versus a real image. Finally, students learn the universal relations second only to Einstein's theory–Finagle's laws.

Don't forget to move the carriage when erasing! Where's the Office Manager for the month? THINK-BE NEAT, BE ACCURATE. Young ladies do not chew gum in an office! Hurray for Monday morning dictation and teensy-weensy pencil footings! Are you here? Today's Dress-up Day—you won't be able to wear skirts that short in the business world!"

Miss Kearney checks a layout.

Can I borrow your scissors?

Fashion and design is more than sewing on buttons; it is the whole world of design and clothing, right from choosing the right material and pattern to the making and wearing of it. "An original design and an original baby dress are two of your large projects this year." "This material is scratchy and coarse; of course, it's muslin not silk." The sewing machine first seemed ominous to me, too, but just wait till you start using the bias binder or the button hole maker. Learning to match a plaid, or gathering a skirt all come in handy, for sewing is something that everybody needs.

The Foods Department planned many activities this year. Lunch was served to the Veterans, a Thanksgiving dinner was arranged for one faculty member who was chosen by the popular vote of each class, and a Christmas brunch was provided for all faculty members. On December third, a Betty Crocker exam was taken by all food classes. The person with the highest score in the state won a $5000 scholarship. At the end of the year everyone voted for the best cook at Belmont High, the winner receiving a trophy from the Crisco Oil Company. All these events combined into an exciting year.

"Maybe I can draw a straight line with a ruler?"

Balance plus proportion plus repetition plus transition equals a decent painting. First, use the finder to "arrange forms in space" and be sure to employ "overlapping line"—it's the first principle of composition. Try some acrylics with a palette knife or that conte crayon. Don't forget what chiaroscuro is or how to make a tertiary color. Remember the Bauhaus and that film you saw on nature that reviewed the art principles. Definitely don't despair if, when you're in a hurry to clean up, the sink gets plugged up. Grin and bear the few rewards of posing for those protraits made with pastels. Then you'll know how to apply "skill and taste to the production of beauty."

Music

"Never double or omit the third!" is an order in music class. The student should know how to harmonize a melody, so that if he is given a bass note he can add a melody and some harmony. To the true music-lover belongs the extraordinary talent of being able to make sense out of the conglomeration of notes, intervals, and triads that he finds sprinkled across the staff. Of course there's a quick answer when the Master of Perfect Pitch asks, "What note am I playing, Josh?" And why not wind up class with a discussion of how much money one can make as a musician?–"Symphony men can also get $10 for a lesson!"

"I didn't compose THAT one!"

Mr. Carlton L. Seaman; Machine

In the Machine and Metal Fabrication Shops a workman is judged by the way he selects and uses the tools of his trade. For this reason it is important that a student know how to select and use properly both the hand and machine tools that are commonly used in the trade. This is the first step on the road toward becoming a successful tradesman.

Physical fitness is an integral part of everyone's high school education. What is acquired now in the way of developing a sound body will be of great benefit in later life. For boys the most popular activities are football, basketball, and soccer. Track, gymnastics, and weight lifting are also important. In the girls side of the gym is heard, "One two, touch those toes. Two two, straighten those knees." They skip around the gym five times, work on the parallel bars, or execute "perfect" lay-up shots. Physical Education classes are valuable additions to the high school careers of all students.

Mechanical Drawing

Mr. Albert W. Hedemark
Mechanical Drawing; Drivers' Education;
Junior Class Advisor

Bob Wesson designs a floor plan.

Mechanical Drawing means a series of drawings that are creative and exploratory. It involves freehand work and detail. It takes form in vertical, horizontal, and inclined line. Good advice is transmitted in messages such as "good layout" and "try for improved lettering." Grades are given: 7 or 8 or 9. "What, no ten!" Back to the drawing board, in a world of isometrics, geometrics, and three views. A line becomes a hidden line, an object line, or a center line. A curve becomes an ellipse, a circle, or an arc. "Help me off the floor plan, the plot plan, and elevations." "Remember the budget!!!"

Drivers Education

"Hold your look!", "Pull over, and do a Gallagher!", "Stop at the Jones's and back up!" "And run the film, H.B." are all pharses common at a session of Driver Education. "The most patient man in the world" shows students the proper driving technique and explains that courtesy, caution, and control are the mark of a good driver. The class is livened up with patented comments and ad libs. "What is the function of a battery?" "A car should never be without one." Now when you're out on the road you'll be an asset because you've learned to handle the unexpected.

Happiness is finding out you have completed all your hours.

You and I are sharing a new experience. You are entering into the hustle, bustle, competitive, adult Business World, and I have exchanged all that for the easy tranquil way of life. Best wishes and Good Luck!

Mrs. Muriel E. Morrissey

May I each day point out the star-crowned hill
To our brash youth, who yearn to climb as men;
And, when they fail, as fail, at first they will,
I hope to help them to smile and try again.
I've learned that knowledge doesn't make one wise,
And saving humor can awaken sleepy eyes.

So, when I've grown too old to teach,
When I am deaf and somewhat queer,
I hope that I shall always know
Unbiased love for children, far and near.
And when my hour glass is running low
I wish, far off perhaps, to hear
One student, mine years ago, to say,
"She helped me see a light that day."

Mr. Albert Clish

The name Albert Clish conjures up the words "the born scientist" in the mold of a Leonardo da Vinci. Here is another man, knowledgeable and talented in many fields, with an innate kindness, with an inborn love for human beings.

Here is the man who revelled in the truths of science and tried to forge these truths into inventive patterns and as with truth, it led him to a love of beauty especially within nature, imparting to him a beauty of soul.

All of his loves and his knowledge manifested themselves in his long years of dedicated service. He shared them with his students who, like him, developed this knowledge experimentally. He shared them with his students who, like him, grew in stature as human beings.

Mrs. Leah Schiff

To bid an official farewell to Mrs. Schiff is a sad experience. One is reluctant to say goodbye to her humor, kindness, selfless diligence, and thorough understanding of what life and people are all about. Mrs. Schiff has a marvelous gift: the ability to make people feel that they are the wisest, worthiest, most pleasant in the world. Students and staff will miss this lady who has so effectively kept in touch with her time and has worked boundlessly to help students achieve because she believed in them more than they believed in themselves.

One of the largest clubs at Belmont High School, the Ski Club journeyed to Mount Cranmore in New Hampshire and Mount Killington in Vermont for weekends during January and February. These activities were made possible by the great support shown when loyal members resisted the elements to sponsor a highly successful, combination car wash and food sale which provided the needed funds.

This year the French Club decided to promote social and academic activities. The initiation was positive proof that play would be mixed with work. Who can forget our "can-can" dancers and our President, the suave Frenchmen. Beauchamps Restaurant provided a delicious look at French life with the "coquavin", certainly a different way of preparing chicken! At meetings throughout the year, French films and slides were presented as entertainment. In March, the club put on a short skit at Melrose High School which gave us a chance to meet other students and to see how far our French had advanced. The finale of the year was a cook-out with tasty food and fun and games.

The "Der Deutsche Verein", commonly known as the German Club, with a membership of over fifty, has had its usual active and interesting year. The club scheduled many events both of social and cultural interests. Following the initiation, the club saw a German play, Das Schloss, and attended a German restaurant. For the first time in the history of the club, an Alumni Christmas Party was planned. In addition, it was also the birthday of the club's faculty advisor. Mr. Richard Penta. In honor of his birthday, the club presented him with a birthday cake, ("Frohliche*S* Geburtstag"). In April, the club attended an annual event at Boston University, known as "Tievoli" ("I love it" backwards). This has definitely been an active and successful year for the German Club.

The Russian Club has certainly kept busy absorbing all forms of Russian culture. Along with the formal Russian dinner, the club has also gathered informally with their guitars and beautiful Russian voices to learn Russian folk songs. The members have also attended the Russian Ballet and movies such as Ten Days That Shook the World. Profiting from a conversation with the author of their textbook, the Russian students were able to meet and talk to Alexander Lispon. Towards the end of the year members experimented for their own enjoyment acting out Russian plays.

"Romulus throws Remus over the Roman wall, a Bacchanalia is held; the Trojan horse once again astounds all with its cleverness." Is this a Hollywood epic of the history of Rome? The Varsity Club promoted school spirit and student participation in sports. The overwhelming enthusiasm displayed at games this year was the best in a long time. The rallies proved that the student body was behind its teams 100 per cent.

As a result of the Club's initiative, more and more students became involved in sports and earned varsity letters. The football programs, which helped to identify players, provided income to purchase two trophies for the Boosters' Club Banquet. These awards were presented to a senior boy and girl who best represent the ideals of the Varsity Club: Dedication, leadership, athletic ability, and scholarship.

Under the auspices of Mr. O'Donnell and Mr. Fisher the Belmont High Student Council began a "new" year. Weekly meetings were held where homeroom representatives worked over the problems facing them. The council was able to set up rules pertaining to open dances and to extra locker periods. A new Constitution has been adapted and will soon be in effect.

Coffee and donuts sold during mid-years and before school.
Revised constitution.
Revised open dance rules.
Revised dress code.
Changed Locker rule(s).
Sold Carnations.
Sponsored Bermuda day.

Mr. O'Donnell advises the council.

The council sponsored a coffee and doughnut break during mid-year exams. Representatives attended two regional meetings in Brookline. The "new" student council has been able to achieve remarkable success in their endeavors, helping to increase school spirit and school activity.

Belmontian Club

The Belmontian Club consists of girls chosen according to their scholarship and character. The club's purpose is to enrich the social, intellectual, and moral life of the "Belmontians." Formal meetings are usually held monthly at which time a lecturer or some form of entertainment is provided. At one of the first meetings, the traditional initiation was held. A corsage and a copy of the club's constitution was presented to each new member. At a later meeting, a guest speaker from the Academie of Moderne spoke about "Fashion Tips." Another annual function is the Mother-Daughter Tea. At the spring fashion show, the girls taking fashion and design modeled some of their "originals." In fact, the vice-president of the club modeled a spring suit which she designed and made herself.

Bookworms Club

"Travel, in the younger sort, is a part of education; in the elder, a part of experience." Following these words of Sir Francis Bacon, the Bookworms Club decided this year to focus its attention on travel, rather than on books and reading. The faculty advisor and the five officers chose memorable spots which the members would enjoy visiting. Plans to travel to New York City were unfortunately canceled for though student response was encouraging, fees were not paid on time. The club also donated assorted books to the Patient's Library of Boston's Veterans Administration Hospital. Yet this year a new objective has been instituted which will hopefully be more popular in future years.

Dear Mrs. Schiff:

We wish to thank you and the members of the Bookworms' Club for your recent donation of assorted books and paperback books for our Patients' Library. This gift will help us provide our patients with enjoyable recreation during their stay in the hospital and we appreciate the efforts of the Bookworms' Club.

Your interest in the recreational needs of the hospitalized veterans is gratefully acknowledged.

Very truly yours,

Photography has proven to be a popular hobby among students and as a result a new club has been added to the High School. In the Photography Club students learn photographic techniques and developing processes. At the first meeting it was decided not to have officers because the idea of the club was to have everyone learn. The following meetings were used to encourage picture-taking, to explain facets of photography, and to allow members to actually develop their own film. With the promise of a darkroom here at school the club will certainly prove to be a creative addition.

This year the Italian Club has promoted the spirit of charity in its activities. One of its main objectives was to lend a helping hand to the misfortunate and underprivileged. During the Christmas season, the club traveled to the Home for Italian Orphans in Jamaica Plain. The smiles on the children's faces expressed their joy in receiving the gifts from the club. For pleasure, the members held a joint dinner with the Spanish Club. Judging by the events held, it is evident that the Italian Club has enjoyed a prosperous year.

El Espagnol Cirolo

"There will be a meeting of the Spanish Club in room 332 this afternoon to discuss plans for the Christmas party." And so the Spanish Club produced its annual Christmas party with all the ingredients of success: food galore, inexpensive gifts, and a general air of good feeling. Besides this, the Spanish Club has been able to keep busy with various projects and has, of course, met with success for its famous parties for all occasions, making this an unforgettable year.

National Honor Society

The N. H. S. always wishes to explore new universes of possible functions for the club, but in their valient search, members sometimes end up starting at the walls of room 307. This year, however, a strong movement for originality has caused many good ideas to show themselves in new and creative ways. Along with their annual Talent Show, a sure success each year, the club has pursued a path of new ideas certainly not this year "The Road Not Taken."

Chess Club

Pres.: R. Carter; V. Pres.: G. Quinn; Sec.: E. Barry; Adv.: Mrs. Mendez.

If anyone has seen a group of students huddled over chessboards in the cafeteria, then he'll know that he has seen the Chess Club. Unlike the reputed chess masters of old, club members do not spend three hours on one move; only two and a half.

Though the club is mainly for those students who like to practice chessboard strategy in after-school skirmishes, several tournaments were held at rival schools for those who wished to set their knights at jousting. Even the losers were always encouraged to try a few more games, hoping that they might become Board I.

Folk Workshop

This year as an added attraction the Folk Workshop has formed a jug band that rehearses about twice a month. Regular Workshop meetings are also held twice a month, generally at a member's home. These meetings are usually jam sessions where members do a lot of song-sharing. The group also invited a teacher to come play the banjo for them. Membership in the club has grown considerably this year due to the wide-spread interest in folk music.

Science Club

This year a new form of science, Robert's Rules of Parliamentary Procedure, has entered the Science Club. Yet, the phoenix has a long rise from the ashes before it overcomes the pull of gravity. Standing committees have been formed which do more than stand as they organize field trips and experiments. Planning, a word that must not be lost from the club, has been instituted as an important step before a program. And with the decision to have a Science Fair, this year has certainly not been an "uncontrolled entropy."

Junior Red Cross

As always, the activities of the Red Cross Club have benefited all. The hard-working members have made many items for both the young, the sixty beautiful dolls dressed up at Christmas; and the old, the Christmas bags sent to patients at Boston State Hospital. The girls' reward for their work were the faces of the eagerly awaiting patients. Working diligently they have also made beanbags, bath salt jars, and washcloth slippers. The collection of comic books and colorful stuffed animals, the projects for St. Patrick's Day and St. Valentine's Day, and a successful bake sale, all mixed pleasure with work. The purchase of a gift for the Red Cross Chapter in Belmont High's name highlighted a most successful year.

Key Club

Scholastic achievement and a willingness to work for charitable organizations are prerequisites for admission to the Key Club. Each month the club, which consists of only male students, organizes fund-raising activities. The aim of the club is to use these funds to help needy charities. For example, the Key Club sponsored a dance and took up a collection of shoes for the Furnald School. All the members of the club should be commended for their fine work.

1. Spoke at a Kiwanis meeting conducted by the Key Club.
2. Assisted at WGBH Channel 2 auction.
3. Collected over 250 pairs of shoes for Furnald School.
4. Participated in basketball games with Cambridge Latin and Boston Latin Key Clubs.

Art Club

Pres.: R. Elliott; V. Pres.: S. Whittier; Treas.: J. Gardner; Sec.: B. Burke; Advs.: Mrs. Sanderson, Mr. Mulford.

In the past years the Art Club explored a variety of activities including handmade jewelry, art workshops, trips to museums, and film viewing. Numerous problems of time and equipment arose with these efforts. It was decided to turn the club into a functioning unit. This grew out of the need for school programs requiring art work, signs for PTA, senior play props, concert program covers, and many dance decorations. The club hopes to provide a useful service to the school, while receiving satisfaction and enjoyment from each project.

Mirage

For those of us who express ourselves freely in words or for those of us who want to read the creative expressions of other students, Mirage is a welcome addition to school activities. The magazine was started this year to compensate for the absence of an outlet for student's creative talent. As a literary magazine, Mirage contains satire, poetry, short stories, and other forms of creativity such as art work. Student's work is submitted through English teachers and members of the staff to the faculty advisor and editors-in-chief who make the final decisions on what appears in the magazine. The staff hopes that Mirage will become a permanent bi-annual addition to our school.

Student Handbook

The Student Handbook was created as a result of the seminars that were held last year. The purpose of the Handbook is to have a concise guide to Belmont High School, both to the building and to the social and academic organizations. Clarifying the formerly unwritten rules, the Handbook has now compiled the school regulations for the reference of both students and teachers. Thanks to the Handbook staff who have diligently collected the information for this guide, the Handbook will be distributed next September. Sophomores and other new students who are unacquainted with the many sides of high school life will find this an indispensable aid, and juniors and seniors will acquire a reliable guide.

Shakespeare Club

The Shakespeare Club is one of our most active clubs. Originally started as a group of students interested in reading and discussing the works of Shakespeare, the club has now turned into a drama-oriented club. The major activity each year is the production of one of Shakespeare's comedies, this year Much Ado About Nothing. In January the Town Hall was the scene of stage-building, make-up lessons, costume-fitting, and most important long rehearsals for those acting in the play.

High Point

Belmont High School's newspaper, the Highpoint, tries to record every event that has taken place during the school year. This year, the Highpoint has taken an accurate account of the student's views concerning the school. The staff has kept the student body informed with the accomplishments of the newly revived Student Council, which has contributed much to the student body this year. The newspaper has also tried to give a wider and broader scope of the students and their accomplishments. The Highpoint can best be described as the mirror of the student action.

Blueprint

The Blueprint has once again been produced for Belmont Senior High, and the story of its production is one of hard work. Constant deadlines were met, and as each drew nearer, the pace became more hectic. Photography staff members tore through corridors catching people off-guard, capturing them forever in the ever-needed candids. Emergency meetings of the literary staff were called as members, inspired by the Muse, wrote copy for ten clubs in one afternoon.

Glee Club

The Glee Club under the direction of Mr. Howard Nettleton studied music both A Cappella and with accompaniment. A tape of Christmas music was made in substitution for the traditional concert and played over the PA for the student body's enjoyment. The annual Spring concert was held in May.

Stage Band

Adv. Mr. Allen.

Stage Band has offered both to students participating in it and to audiences at its concerts a lively and enjoyable selection of the present. Sometimes with a bit of jazz, sometimes with a haunting love song, this informal music group imprints a melody on our minds that is not easy to forget.

Singing Debs

The Singing Debs is a group of girls who sing in four-part harmony. Their music varies from sad and pretty "Autumn Leaves" to the three part round, "Christmas is Coming," to the popular song, "Cherish." Their talent has been heard many times: at a Christmas Concert at Payson Park Church, over the P.A. on the Christmas Tape, and during the Spring Concert.

Belmont High's Football team had a great year under Coaches Whatley, Carey, Grutchfield, and Mullin. With the combined effort of the Pizzi brothers, Tyler Youell's great skill, the punting ability of Steve Donovan and all the boys on the team, Belmont had a squad that could work together and win. Because of a good team and good games the school spirit increased to make the rally's almost as good as the games. No Marauder will ever forget the rain, the mud of the hard fought games, the one against Melrose and last of all the victorious game played against Watertown. The spectators can still be heard above the band crying "Go Team Go. Yea Belmont."

A calm Mr. Wenner supervises the soccer team.

In the field, soccer played its part in the local sports schedule. Victories over Watertown and Wakefield for the past three seasons and the upset of a previously undefeated Lexington and Governor Dummer with whom we have not beaten for the past two years highlighted this year's season. High scorer for the year was Brian McKenny, a junior, who was aided in the field by Scott Hartford and David "Dilly" Connors. Coaches MacBain and Russell were able to make this year a great year for soccer.

Winchester seems to have the upper hand as Belmont gets in the rough rebound action.

Basketball is more than just throwing paperballs into a wastebasket, or leather balls into a net basket, and the Basketball team at B.H.S. has certainly proved this. We have sustained our good record throughout the year, thanks to the excellent players and the enthusiastic support of our fans.

One of the highlights of the Basketball season, the Varsity-Faculty game, has always been a favorite for the rival teams and spectators alike, and this year was no exception. It gave the teachers a chance to prove that they can teach their students subject matter in the gym as well as in the classroom.

Fighting for more points.

Sports played a prominent picture in the fall scene for the girls as well as the boys. This year's field hockey team, captained by Sonja Blomdahl and Elizabeth Kelly, got off to a great start with defeats over such teams as Stoneham and Arlington. Belmont has lost to these teams for the past two seasons, so it was a very joyous victory. Credit goes to the whole team and their coaches, Miss Cleary and Mrs. Whitney, as they showed plenty of "zip" coming out with a record of six wins and four losses.

Girls' Basketball

The girls' basketball team had a very disappointing season this year. Indoor Track

The track team is a very elite group. It is composed of determined, hard-working athletes who each contribute to the success of the team. In all of the phases of track, natural ability, like that of Vag Mosca, Peter McGinty, Herbie Kwan, and Charlie Nyman, is a prerequisite. However, hard work and a lot of willpower will usually stand one in good stead on the team. So a track man is high caliber; he displays courage in a sport where courage is vital to success.

SENIORS

Advisor and Class Officers

It has been a pleasure to know and to work with the members of the class of 1969. It is my hope that each of you recognize the fact that nothing in this world is impossible. I hope that each of you will set your future goals high and then work, sacrifice and sweat until your goals are within reach.

Success, whether it be in studies, business, or sports, does not just happen. It is the culmination of hours of backbreaking work. Make sure you are ready to give this of yourself in your future endeavors.

There is nothing in this world that you cannot achieve if you are willing to pay the price.

God help you to do your best.

As our high school days conclude, we as a class can feel that we have truly distinguished ourselves. Our accomplishments at Belmont High are lasting ones which we hope will serve as guidelines for future students as well as always reminding us of what can be done by dedicated and spirited individuals who are willing to work together as one.

It is this spirit and this feeling of accomplishment that we are most proud to take with us as we leave Belmont High School.
